

save the last dance for me and a four: last dance he does not dance or does and she does not dance or does he hip hops and she ballrooms she takes up poetry he takes on tai chi she discovers a cure for the common cold he plants prize petunias and a three: dance therapy he danced or she danced i'm too tired to dance children to dance class and baseball and math team tap dancing around each other competition dancing break dance

and a two: war dance

he danced and she danced tango dancing dancing like trees and bees and peepods dancing the jig and twist and cha cha mating dance dancing big-bellydance dancing and a one: courtship dance in four beats choreography of a courtship and marriage

Please recycle to a friend.

ORIGAMIPOEMS.COM

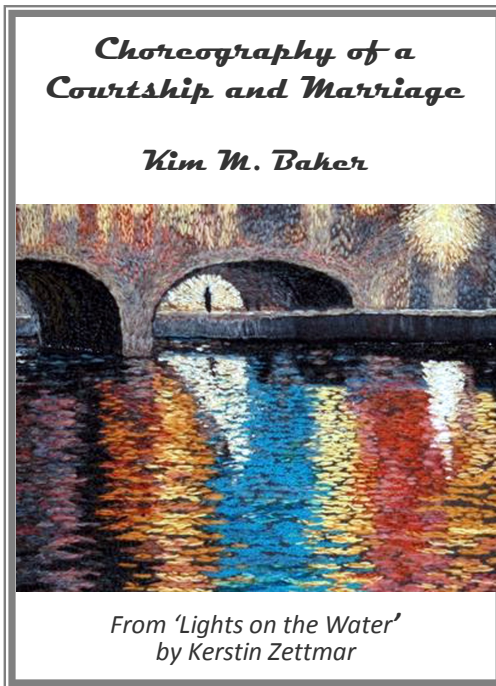

email us at:

origamipoems@gmail.com

Cover is from Lights on the Water a fabric art painting by Kerstin Zettmar www.zettmar.com

Origami Poems Project™

Choreography of a Courtship and Marriage
Kim M. Baker © 2009

Love at First Sight

Inspired by Lights on the Water,
a fabric art painting by Kerstin Zettmar

The riverwalk is pixilated with people in waterfire reverie.
Yet in that madcap jostling along the path to the fireworks, our eyes meet, for just a moment.
Then, whoosh! We are swept along in the sway and crush, rushed to opposites sides of the bridge.
All through the night, I think I see you, there, near the vendor with his lemony ice, no, there with the blue cotton candy man, wait! there in the mauve of love splayed insane across the water like petals, exploding in fireworks of "find him!"